HER TRUE MUSIC.

The Surprise That Came After the Lovers Were Engaged.

By BETTINA MAYHEW.

[Copyright, 1909, by Associated Literary Press.]

"St. James' park? Pardon me. Can you direct me to the Woodson residence?"

The park's thick turf had deadened the sound of the steps; hence the two clerical looking gentlemen had observed at close range for some time the girl in the swing before either of them spoke.

For a minute a sensitive face, framed by a big hat, lifted, and a pair of glowing black eyes traveled with slow deliberation from one to the other before she replied.

"The graystone, first turn to the left."

Then she resumed her book, the wide hat drooping so that the merest outlines of chin and neck peeped from below the edge of the brim.

"A pretty hat and a pretty girl," the Rev. Paul Freyer meditated, "and a picture worth remembering."

Two hours later from the landing of the stairs his eyes fell upon the same hat, entirely at home on the rack in the Woodson hall. He knew it instantly. By no chance could there be two such hats. It was broad and low crowned, a mass of white poppies with dark hearts—one of those articles, in fact, which proclaim with brazen tongue the personality of the wearer.

Perhaps the graystone, with its web of dull green and gay red creepers and its more than full quota of nooks, sunny and conspicuous or unexpected and shadowy, had something to do with the Rev. Paul's mood. At any rate, before he stirred from the landing the pretty girl in white, with the glowing black eyes, had responded to his imagination by assuming the proportions of his ideal—a Portia, a veritable Portia.

Who was she? The Rev. Paul derived a pleasurable shock from an inspired guess. Who else, indeed, but Ada, stepdaughter to his sister, Mrs. Sara Woodson? Quite distinctly he recalled a forgotten fact. There had been at the time of the marriage mention made of a child. That, of course, was years ago. She was now probably well grown.

He had been in college then, afterward traveling abroad. Returning, he had immediately settled into a pastorate that had taxed his powers to the uttermost and tired his very soul. Sister and all else outside of duty had gone from him with an imperceptible drift till the day dawned when he was peremptorily ordered away for rest. He had come protesting, regretting, and now—what if— He laughed softly and sought his sister.

In the dining room, when he entered, the pretty girl, prettier than he had thought, stood with her hand on the back of a chair at the foot of the table.

"My stepdaughter." Mrs. Woodson's smile was gracious and sweet. "Ada, my brother, the Rev. Paul Freyer, and his assistant, the Rev. Mr. Condon. Just think, Ada," she laughed gayly, "for the whole of the summer they have nothing to do nor a thought or wish but to amuse. That list we were preparing for our summer reading"—

"Oh, Sara!" Eager and bright the clear voice floated from the foot of the table. "We must—we must first finish that story of 'Sindbad the Sailor.' It is Maupassant's very best. Maupassant?" she reflected. "Perhaps, now, it's Poe, or maybe," and the big childish eyes sought those in turn of each present—"No; I have it. It's Halifax. Am I right? Sara, do set me straight."

Mrs. Woodson's hands dropped heavy on her unfolded napkin, and the Rev. Paul's heart contracted to diminutive proportions. For him the golden bowl was broken, the swift born hope of an hour trailed in the dust. The—the hat—then, had not been—

He sighed, and the sigh was—for the smallness of the beautiful concrete and for the greatness of the beautiful abstract.

And Ada babbled joyously on, her clear voice and soft laugh dominant features of the dinner hour. "The chatter of a child," the Rev. Paul decided, unconsciously talking down to her. Afterward she flitted about the rooms, never still, the quick tattoo of her high heeled slippers quite as musical as her rendition of a famous concerto and disappearing early with a pleasant good night.

"A charming young girl," ventured Rev. Mr. Condon, and the Rev. Paul re-enforced the remark with: "For all the world like a white butterfly. Has she never gone to school, Sara?"

But if Ada had not womanly graces and scholarship she possessed an accomplishment out of the usual, a constant eruption of small talk. No conversation, serious or learned, could resist it. Without a thought she cleft it at a blow, severing each thread past hope of redemption.

"Tinkling cymbals," the Rev. Paul remarked one day, watching the flying, whirling white figure in pursuit of butterflies in the occasional patches of sunshine among the great trees. "It's a pity so exquisite a creature should be so—so— You ought to send her to school, Sara."

Mrs. Woodson flushed to the little curls on her forehead. "Paul," she said, "you do Ada injustice. I"— She stopped, laughing lightly, as Ada fluttered into the room.

"Ada," she called, "Paul is recalling his youth by translating some of the Homeric poems. He's found his stone wall. Perhaps you can help him over."

Obediently Ada bent over the tall-wart reverend, her white forefinger tracing the lines, translating slowly, word by word, with great difficulty, but with absolute correctness, the entire passage, her bright eyes meeting his uplifted gaze at the finish with the frank pleasure of an unspoiled child

"Why, ladybird," he laughed, "who could have dreamed of that pretty head holding such gems of wisdom?"

"Mere accretions!" She had seized her net and was off after a big white moth with dark patches on his downy wings.

The Rev. Paul watched her thoughtfully. "Sara," he said, "the child has possibilities. This glimpse of memory, with one or two glimmerings of a mind that I have surprised, convinces me that she could be awakened. You ought to send her to school.

"I didn't mean to offend," he added as Sara's face, flushing and twitching, appeared above her paper, her eyes deprecatingly seeking those of Condon. "I think, if you don't"—

He forgot to finish. The habit of long years of self effacement in the interest of unfortunate humanity rose before him like a pillar of fire. The duty was plain. He would accept it in behalf of his sister as well as himself.

After that the numerous nooks of the graystone had frequent occupants, the Rev. Paul lecturing and explaining and Ada listening, the big eyes at last growing so wistful that in the end, with a great pang, he gave it up.

"Tinkling cymbals," he muttered and sighed again. And the sigh was for—the lavish outward riches, the lamentable inward poverty.

She was radiant, beautiful as an angel, he thought, that last Sunday morning, very like one of her own poppies. He turned in his seat to watch her, the rosy skin of hands and arms showing through the meshes of her gloves as she turned the leaves of the hymn book. She found the place presently, offering him a half of the book with an upward glance and little dimples showing about her lips.

Then they rose with the congregation. A minute after he stopped singing in the middle of a verse the better to listen—

Bring forth the royal diadem
And crown him Lord of all.

The Rev. Paul withstood the flood for one small moment; then abjectly, in spirit, he knelt before the soul of the singer. The tenderness, the pathos, the love, his splendid vocabulary held not the words to express the wealth of it. His ideals of womanliness and intellectuality went down in a very sirocco of yearning. The beautiful casket with the birdlike spirit and the soul of music far, far more than sufficed. Fortunate man indeed was he if—

They walked across the park in silence. At the swing the Rev. Paul stopped.

"It was here, Ada," he said, "that I first saw you. I love you, dear, more than anything in the world. I want you for my wife."

Ada did not at once turn. Her shoulders heaved, and a small handkerchief with cobwebby lace was in requisition. Presently from behind its daintiness came a muffled voice, "I—I know—so—little."

"It makes not the slightest difference," he urged. "Ada, just one word."

"If—you're—sure."

"Do I live? I am no surer of life."

The engagement was necessarily brief. The very next day it was announced. The Rev. Paul, sitting alone when the mail was brought in, glanced over the papers. Almost in scare lines the notice met his eyes—the usual form, but—what—what—

He sprang up electrified. He sank back shivering. How she had played with him—Sara too!

"Miss Woodson is not only strikingly beautiful," he read, "but she is a woman of rare attainments, having but recently returned from a two years' postgraduate course abroad in the best institutions open to women. The Rev. Mr. Freyer ought to consider himself a lucky man."

There was a rush of feet, then clinging hands caught his and pretty lips close to his ear demanded forgiveness.

"I couldn't help it," she murmured. "The temptation was too great. You did so look the grave and reverend seignior."

Opposites.

Upgardson—Isn't a lawsuit over a patent right about the dullest thing you ever saw?

Atom—Not always. I attended a trial of that kind once that was too funny for anything. A tall lawyer named Short was reading a 6,000 word document he called a brief.—Chicago Tribune.

Spelling.

On a member of parliament being accused of bad spelling Disraeli humorously defended him by declaring that "a man must be an idiot who could not spell a word more ways than one."

No Business Good Business.

"Yes," said the quiet man, "business has been good with me this week—or bad—I don't know which you would call it. I have been busier than the company likes to have me."

"What do you mean by that? Is there an employer who does not like to have his employees work? Could I get a job there? It seems to me that such a position would suit my temperament exactly."

"The company doesn't care to have anything doing in my department. It would be glad to pay me my salary and never have me do a stroke of work."

"What an ideal job! What kind of a place is it?"

"I am an adjuster of death claims for a life insurance company."—New York Press.

Amateur Weather Prophets.

"The old weather prophets there are left now," remarked a Cleveland lawyer who was raised in the country, "are professionals. The good old fashioned amateur weather prophets that could tell you what the next day would be like just by sniffing the atmosphere and looking at the sky are no more. People are growing up to depend on the weather reports in the newspapers, and they don't develop any intuition in that direction any more. When I was a kid I used to ask my father what the next day's weather would be with just as much feeling of confidence in what he would tell me as I would have in an unabridged dictionary if I wanted to look up a word. And, as a rule, I wasn't disappointed."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

The Use of Iron.

Iron has been known to men for a very long time. In the time of the Assyrians it was extensively used, iron saws, knives and other tools having been found by Layard at Nineveh. Homer refers to the forging of iron, while the hardening and tempering of steel appear to have been operations in common use among the early Greeks. The employment of a kind of bellows for the forging of tools, presumably of iron, figures in Egyptian sculpture of 1500 B. C. Cast iron appears to have been discovered about 350 B. C. Through the agency of the Romans the manufacture of iron was introduced all over the then known world and into those regions where it had not been previously known.—New York American.

SONOMA INDEX-TRIBUNE

Sonoma, Sonoma County, Cal., Aug. 28, 1909.

H. H. GRANICE, Editor.

President Wheeler Takes The Co-Eds to Task.

President Wheeler of the State University got on his high horse on Friday of last week and declared before the Associated Women Students that girls come to the University when they finished High School merely because they had nothing else to do, and took a fling at women graduates generally who took up high school teaching. Among other things the horrid man said: "There are a lot of you who should not be here at all," he declared. "You are too young and immature, and have no purpose. I consider the greatest injury to the high schools to-day to be the college women who, merely imitating the notions of their professor, introduce into the high schools methods and problems which do not belong there. Many of these women are teaching merely until they meet the right man to say 'Yes' to. Of you women who have no mission at the University I ask, at least, that you try to act in a dignified manner on the campus. Let there be no giggling or flirting on college ground.

"The sorority and girls' clubhouses should be more quiet, with more opportunity for scholarly work. There are too many teas and balls, too much flutter and nervousness, pressure and intensity, especially in the beginning of the year. There are too many social distractions."

The Sewer Question

The City Trustees meet in regular monthly session next Wednesday evening. Among other matters that will come up for consideration will be the sewer question. A petition will be presented praying that the Board secure the services of a civil engineer to make surveys and prepare data as to a feasible plan for a system of sewerage for Sonoma and estimated cost of the same.

The move is a wise one, as this town needs a sewer system and needs it badly. The question for the engineer to decide is what kind of a system. Will it be a tide-water proposition or some other less expensive plan. Of course the ability of our taxpayers to stand the cost will enter largely into securing the co-operation of the people in our efforts to give to Sonoma an improvement which modern ideas of hygiene demand.

For years the Index-Tribune has agitated a sewer system for Sonoma. In fact the entire community is united on the proposition. The question now to be solved is one of cost and our ability to finance the proposition. That is why the Trustees will be petitioned to secure the plans and specifications for an improvement that ought to take precedence over every thing else. The health of the town and the lives of its people demand this.

Never too Late to Marry.

John Ferguson, aged 73 years and Eunice Beeson, who confesses to 69 summers, well known residents of Alexander Valley in this county, were granted a marriage license by the blushing deputies in the County Clerk's office last Thursday.

Dr. Frederick Leix, accompanied by a party of relatives, visited Santa Rosa last Thursday afternoon. The round trip was made in the doctor's fine Buick auto.

Slaughter House Inspected

At the request of the State Board of Health, to whom complaint had been made, Dr. J. W. Jesse of Santa Rosa, County Health Inspector, was in town last Saturday to inspect an alleged slaughter house nuisance outside the limits of the town. His report has been forwarded to the State Board, which will act on his findings.

New Masonic Hall

Bids were to have been opened and the contract awarded last night for building the new Masonic Hall on First-street West. The plans and specifications submitted by architect A. C. Lutgens of San Francisco were accepted some time since by the Masons. They call for a handsome two-story building.

Snow Ball Dance at Parente's Hall.

There will be a snowball dance at Parente's Hall, El Verano, this evening, to which everybody will be made welcome. Snowballs and confetti will be liberally distributed among those who attend.

NOTICE TO Contractors

Sealed bids or proposals for furnishing all labor and material and building and erecting a stone masonry bridge over Nathanson creek on Second-street East, between United States and England streets, in Sonoma City, agreeably to and in conformity with the plans and specifications therefor, adopted by the Board of Trustees of the City of Sonoma, on file in the office of the City Clerk, will be received by the Board of Trustees of the City of Sonoma, at the council chamber of said Board, in the City Hall, up to eight (8) o'clock p. m., of

Monday, September 13th, 1909

Bidders will accompany their respective bids with a certified check for ten per cent. of such bid, payable to the City Clerk, which certified check shall become forfeit to the City of Sonoma unless the successful bidder within such time and in such sum as may be prescribed by said Board give a bond with sufficient sureties to said city for the faithful performance of such contract.

The Board reserves the right to reject any or all bids as the public interest may require.

By order of the Board of Trustees of the City of Sonoma.

Sheriff Dunlap and G. Palmer of Napa were here Thursday. The gentlemen were interested in a number of fast race horses being trained by Joe Ryan for the races to be held here September 9th.

Estate of the Late Mrs. Bain

Robert W. Bain of San Francisco, eldest son of the late Mrs. Anna Bain, has petitioned the Superior Court, through his attorney Robt. A. Poppe, for letters of administration upon the estate of his deceased mother. The estate consists of a mountain ranch two miles north of this place and perosnal property, all of which is valued at about $5,000.

THREE YEARS FOR SONOMA BURGLAR

Alfred Gliselli, an All-Round Crook, Gets His From a San Francisco Judge

Alfred Gliselli, an all-round crook, made his appearance here last Spring. Unknown to our people he was a convicted felon on probation by grace of Judge Cabiness of San Francisco, before whom he had been tried and convicted by a jury for a burglary committed in that city.

After being here a short time and enjoying his liberty with the strings attached to it, in an evil moment Gliselli obeyed "the call of the wild" and entered upon a new career of crime. In a short time he had burglarized the Swiss Hotel and Lawrence Villa in this place, the Villa in El Verano, the Eagle's Nest at Agua Caliente and how many other places, to use an expression of the lawyers, deponeth saieth not.

For these latter crimes and for robbing a hotel in Santa Rosa the crook was placed in durance vile. It was then his identity was established as a probated criminal from the metropolis and he was returned to that city. This was several months ago

On Monday Gliselli was taken before Judge Cabiness who sentenced him to serve three years in Folsom prison for the burglary committed previous to being placed on probation by a kind-hearted Judge whose trust he had betrayed

When this sentence will have been served by Gliselli he will be brought back to this county to answer for his crimes committed here.

"The Traveler" and Sonoma Lodge of Odd Fellows

C. T. Ferguson and R. L. Thompson of Santa Rosa Lodge, No. 53, I. O. O. F., paid Sonoma Lodge a fraternal visit last Saturday evening. The visiting members brought with them "The Traveler," which was presented to their Sonoma brethren and the ladies of Rebekah Degree Lodge with impressive ceremonies. There was a large attendance of Odd Fellows and after the business of the Lodge had been transacted the invited guests and members were invited to partake of a fine spread in the banquet room, which had been prepared by the Rebekah Degree ladies. The affair was one of the most enjoyable fraternal gatherings held here in a long time.

Press Davis' Condition

The condition of Press R. Davis, the well-known civil engineer, who has been lying dangerously ill at Green's sanitarium on Broadway the past week, is now reported to have taken a favorable turn the past few days and he is slowly improving. Mr. Davis has been suffering from pneumonia and on Wednesday his condition was critical. The change for the better was good news to his Santa Rosa relatives and the many friends of the sick man throughout the county.

A Financial Success

The promenade concert and ball given by the Catholic ladies at Union Hall, on Friday evening of last week, was largely attended and a social success. Financially it was all that could be desired and Mesdames Frank Koenig, J. H. Murray and Miss Emily Kearney, the committee having the affair in hand, by their indefatiguable efforts and generosity of those who donated the ice cream, hall and music, netted about $125.

The liberal donors were Frank Koenig, who furnished the hall; Mrs. Jos. P. Berry of Santa Rosa, the music for the concert and ball, and Mrs. Lutgens, the ice cream. During the evening the dancing numbers were interspersed with vocal and instrumental numbers rendered by Misses Meta Stofen, Ida Waterman, Helena Clewe and Messrs. Smith and Stevenson.

Well Known Priest Here.

Rev. Father McNaboe of San Francisco is spending a vacation of several weeks at Agua Caliente Springs. The reverend gentleman officiated in St. Francis Church a few years ago while the pastor, Father Leahy, was traveling in Europe and is well known to our people. Father McNaboe recites that about twenty years ago while he was pastor of the Catholic Church at Elmira, Solano county, among his pupils was our fellow townsman, Deputy Sheriff Ryan. At that time Joe wore knee pants and was one of the most mischievious boys of the village. The father is delighted with the progress our town has made since his last visit two years ago.

Sent Up for Sixty Days

Louis Feeling, Frank McLaughlin and Ed. Hayes, who have been doing odd jobs about the valley the past few weeks, were arrested last Sunday on a charge of disturbing the peace. They were immediately arraigned before Judge Small and pleading guilty to the charge were each sentenced to serve sixty days in the county jail. The offense which brought about their arrest was getting drunk and invading the residence grounds of a home on Broadway and terrorizing the women in the absence of the men folks.

Want to Perfect Their Title

Suit has been commenced in the Superior Court of this county to quiet title to a number of lots on Broadway owned by Blanche Weems, Maude E. Bose, Mattie A. Campbell, Susie Batchelder, A. E. Warriner and Sarah E. Campbell. Henry Hampton, S. Morrow and John Cousins, long since deceased and who, in the remote past had an interest in the property, and the City of Sonoma are defendants in the suit, which is simply brought to make the property in question negotiable real estate.

Mrs. J. A. Poppe Seriously Ill With Pneumonia.

Mrs. Catherine Poppe, Sonoma's pioneer lady merchant, was taken suddenly ill Monday and has been confined to her home all week. Mrs. Poppe is suffering from pneumonia. She is under the care of Drs. Leix and yesterday Dr. E. Z. Hennessey of Napa was here in consultation with them on the case.

Brought Here for Interment

Bids for a New Stone Bridge Invited.

The City Trustees, at a special meeting held Thursday evening adopted plans and specifications for a stone masonry bridge across the Nathanson creek which crosses Second-street East in its meanderings through town. The substitution of stone and concrete for wood in renewing the many small wooden affairs crossing most of the business streets in the town is a wise and economical move on their part. Recently they caused to be erected the first of a series of these stone bridges across Nathanson's creek on Napa street opposite the Bulotti residence. This structure will endure for all time without cost for repairs and the one to be built on Second-street East will be similarly constructed.

The Trustees, through their President, advertise elsewhere in these columns for sealed proposals to build the new bridge and will receive bids up to Monday, September 13th.

ORDER TO SHOW CAUSE

In the Superior Court of the County of Sonoma, State of California.--Probate.

In the matter of the Estate of GEORGE CARLSEN, also known as GEORGE BECK, deceased.

Order to Show Cause why Order of Sale of Real Estate should not be made. C. C. P., Sec. 1,538.

Frank L. Blackburn, the administrator of the estate of George Carlsen, also known as George Beck, deceased, having filed his petition herein, duly verified, praying for an order of sale of the whole the real estate of said decedent, for the purposes therein set forth:

It is therefore ordered by the Judge of said Court that all persons interested in the estate of said deceased appear before the said Superior Court on Monday, the 27th day of September, 1909, at ten o'clock (10) o'clock A. M., of said day, at the Court-room of Department Two of said Superior Court, at the Court House, in the City of Santa Rosa, County of Sonoma, State of California, to show cause why an order should not be granted to the said administrator to sell so much of the real estate of the said deceased at private sale, as shall be necessary.

And that a copy of this order be published at least once a week for four successive weeks in THE SONOMA INDEX-TRIBUNE, a newspaper printed and published in said county.

COUNTY NEWS ITEMS

General Dickinson of Healdsburg is dead.

Hops are going like hot cakes at 20 cents per pound in this county. Hundreds of thousands of pounds have already been sold at that figure.

At the Guerneville Congregational Church Sunday night the pulpit was occupied by the wife of the pastor, Mrs. E. E. Chakurian, who preached the sermon.

Mrs. Anna Faught, wife of Armstrong Faught, the well-known Mark West pioneer, died at eight o'clock on Sunday morning at the family residence.

Mrs. Jane Anderson, whose home is at Cotati, fell from the porch of the house and broke her leg, dislocated her ankle, and otherwise injured herself. She is seventy-nine years of age and blind

The Bank of Sonoma County has commenced a suit in foreclosure of mortgage against Robert White et al. The amount sought to be recovered is about $5,000. The land is located in southern Sonoma county.

A suit in foreclosure of mortgage was commenced in the Superior Court on Wednesday by Agnes Renner against Sarah J. Savory, to recover $490 and interest and costs. The land involved is in South Park Addition, Santa Rosa.

Much interest is being taken in Healdsburg as to who will be the next postmaster of that city, when the present postmaster's term expires. He will not seek re-election. There are several candidates and when Congressman McKinlay arrives in a few days, it is thought the matter will be settled.

The Cloverdale Trustees last week fixed the tax rate at 75 cents on the $100 assessed valuation for municipal purposes. The tax is divided as follows: 45 cents for general fund and 30 cents for sewer fund. This is the same rate as last year. Two years ago the rate was 80 cents and three years ago $1.00. The assessment roll of the city is approximately $500,000.

The Justices of the Peace and the Constables of Sonoma county, as well as in the other counties of the state, are awaiting with some interest, the hearing of the suit before the Supreme Court on Sept. 7, which will determine whether they can get the salaries they have been accustomed to for some time. Pending the decision of the court the magistrates and minions of the law have had their salaies tied up.

Mr. Weske of Windsor, uncle of Attorney H. W. A. Weske, was found lying unconscious alongside the county road near Gwynn's Corners, on Saturday morning last. He had been thrown from the vehicle when he drove off the end of an unguarded bridge on the road some time previously. He was picked up by the stage from Burke's coming into Santa Rosa, and hurried back to that institution where he was given medical attention.

GLEN ELLEN ITEMS

Mrs. Olga Gordenker entertained Miss Crepin several days this week.

S. T. Daken, the artist, who has resided with his family here ever since driven out of San Francisco by the earthquake and fire of April 1906, has gone to Santa Rosa to live.

Despair and Despondency

No one but a woman can tell the story of the suffering, the despair, and the despondency endured by women who carry a daily burden of ill-health and pain because of disorders and derangements of the delicate and important organs that are distinctly feminine. The tortures so bravely endured completely upset the nerves if long continued.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is a positive cure for weakness and disease of the feminine organism.

IT MAKES WEAK WOMEN STRONG, SICK WOMEN WELL.

It allays inflammation, heals ulceration and soothes pain. It tones and builds up the nerves. It fits for wifehood and motherhood. Honest medicine dealers sell it, and have nothing to urge upon you as "just as good." It is non-secret, non-alcoholic and has a record of forty years of cures. ASK YOUR NEIGHBORS. They probably know of some of its many cures.

If you want a book that tells all about woman's diseases, and how to cure them at home, send 21 one-cent stamps to Dr. Pierce to pay cost of mailing only, and he will send you a free copy of his great thousand-page illustrated Common Sense Medical Adviser—revised, up-to date edition, in paper covers. ALL NIGHT BAKERIES.

Where New Yorkers Can Have Wants Supplied at Any Hour.

Among the many places of business of one and another sort that in a great city are kept open all night are bakeries.

The bakery is a peculiarly domestic business establishment, supplying mostly home wants, and as most people work days and sleep nights it might be supposed that there would be no occasion to keep bakeries open nights, but here, where with the city's manifold industries there must be a large number of people working at all times to keep things going, there are bakeries that do keep open and find trade at all hours.

Some of these all night bakeries have lunch room attachments, where people stop in to eat going to or from work, while others do a bakery business only. At either customers come in at all hours of the night to buy things to carry away, just as people do at any hour of the day, for the people who go to work at midnight or at 1, 2 or 3 o'clock in the morning want bread and bakery stuff before they go, just the same as do those who begin their labors at 7, 8 or 9, and there is likely to be in their neighborhood an all night open bakery where they can regularly supply their wants.

From 2 to 5 a. m. are the hours that mark low ebb in the all night bakery trade, but customers are dropping in all night long.—New York Sun.

ANCIENT GUNS.

Remarkable Weapons That Were Used by the Turks and Chinese.

At the siege of Rhodes the Turks constructed mortars by hollowing out cavities in the solid rock at the proper angle, and in the arsenal at Malta is a trophy of the long and glorious defense of Valetta in a Turkish gun, about a six pounder, composed of a copper tube coiled over with strong rope and "jacketed" with rawhide. In the same collection are some antique "quick firers," breechloaders, with small bores and immensely long barrels, like punt guns. The Malay pirates put great trust in the long brass swivel guns called "lela," and in Borneo these lelas were used as a kind of currency, large sums being estimated in guns.

The Chinese cast excellent bronze guns (there is a fine specimen of them in Devonport dockyard), but so little did they understand gunnery that in the so called "opium war" the forts of the Bocca Tigris, defending the Canton river, had the guns built immovably into the walls. The Sikh gunners opposed to England in the two Punjab wars, though they loaded with amazing recklessness, shoveling in the powder from open boxes, stuck to their guns to the last. The blood of the first man killed was smeared on the gun, and the whole detachment died beside it sooner than retreat.—Chambers' Journal.

Too Much of a Tonic.

When Mr. Chinchin returned home from Chinchin & Chinchin's the other day he found his wife lying worn out upon the sofa.

"Nothing wrong, I hope!" he exclaimed.

"I'm afraid I shall have to stop that tonic the doctor prescribed for Tommy," Mrs. Chinchin faintly murmured.

"Why? Isn't he any better?" asked Chinchin.

"Oh, yes, but I think the tonic must be too invigorating. Why, he has slid down the banisters six times this morning, broken the hall lamp, two vases, a water jug and a looking glass, tied a tin can to the cat's tail and scribbled his name on the drawing room paper. Of course it's very gratifying, but I don't feel I could stand much more, so I think I—I'll stop the tonic."

Bats Inside Bamboo.

The cutting down of a clump of bamboos in the royal botanical gardens, Singapore, shows that the hollows in the stems of these plants may afford a dwelling place for bats. On the splitting of a joint three bats flew out, and it was perceived that others were within. Care was taken to prevent further escape, and later examination of the joint revealed the presence of twenty-three bats in the hollow. Four of these were adult females and nineteen young ones. Other bamboo joints were also found to contain a number of bats. The species is known as Vesperugo pachypus.—London Scraps.

The Proper Question.

The man with the glassy eye and preternaturally solemn demeanor put down a sovereign at the booking office at Charing Cross and demanded a ticket. "What station?" snapped the booking clerk. The would be traveler steadied himself. "What stations have you?" he asked with quiet dignity.—London Globe.

A Criticism.

"He said this skirt of mine was a perfect symphony."

"Maybe, but it's not well conducted."

"What do you mean?"

"It drags."—Cleveland Leader.

The Real Want.

"What we want is a square deal."

"Oh, we'll compromise on that in a pinch. What we really want is a shade the best of it."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Insincere.

"Oh, John, don't you wish we could sit here and spoon forever?"

"Yes, dearest. But let's go now. I think I hear the dinner bell!"—Boston Post.

It costs the devil little trouble to catch the lazy man.—German Proverb.

Chinese Filial Piety.

The following Chinese story illustrates the national regard for filial piety: A man and his wife maltreated the husband's mother. As a punishment the scene of the act was openly cursed, the active agents were put to death, and the mother of the wife was bambooed, branded and exiled for her daughter's crime. The house in which the offenders lived was dug up from the foundations. Moreover, the scholars of the district were precluded from attending public examinations, and even the magistrates were deprived of their offices. These drastic measures were designed to render the empire

The King of Instruments.

Restricted as is its range of dynamics, the violin has had for its votaries men of such widely differing temperaments as Paganini and Spohr, Wilhelmj and Sarasate, Joachim and Ysaye. Its literature does not compare with that of the piano, for which Bach, Beethoven, Schumann, Chopin and Brahms have written their choicest music, yet the intimate nature of the violin, its capacity for passionate emotion, crowns it—and not the organ with its mechanical tonal effects—as the king of instruments. Nor does the voice make the peculiarly poignant appeal of the violin. Its lowest note is the G below the treble clef and its top note a mere squeak, but it seems in a few octaves to have imprisoned within its wooden walls a miniature world of feeling. Even in the hands of a clumsy amateur it has the formidable power of giving pain, while in the grasp of a master it is capable of rousing the soul.—James Huneker in Everybody's.
